

Jacey Draughn

I have always been very passionate about breast health and even more so now when my life changed less than a year ago.

I am 34 years old diagnosed with triple negative invasive ductal carcinoma in October 2015. I chose to have a bilateral mastectomy with reconstruction and had to have adjuvant chemotherapy which I just finished up with 7/20/16.

I may not be able to write you the best synopsis of why I would be a great person for this but I can tell you this has become my life... I want to let other women know, if you find a suspicious spot do not wait. If your spot is in face cancer you have a voice, this is your body and just because the first physician you are paired with tells you one thing it isn't the gospel, you have the right to seek multiple opinions until you feel satisfied with what you are being told.

I am a survivor and I have a story... I want to be able to help other women on their breast cancer journey to know that they are not alone, that they have help and there are resources out there that can help you along the way.
